

ARMANDO EZQUERRA HASBUN

Originally from Peru, Armando has degrees in Psychology and International Studies and a Masters degree in Spanish Language and Literature. He was certified as a court interpreter in Delaware in 2000 and federally certified as a court interpreter in 2002. In 2012, he became certified as a Judiciary interpreter and translator by NAJIT. Prior to that, he was ATA-certified as a English>Spanish translator and served as Administrator of ATA's Interpreting Division. In 2015 he was awarded the ATA's Harvie Jordan Scholarship, which promotes, encourages and supports leadership and professional development of translators and interpreters.

Armando is a certified trainer for medical interpreters, as well as a conference interpreter, grader, lecturer and consultant to the industry, drawing on his years of experience in Quality Assurance and Interpreter Development. He is currently an Adjunct Professor of Interpretation and Translation Studies at La Salle University in Philadelphia. He has published on topics of interest to the profession and the industry is often engaged as a speaker at conferences.
